

CURTIS ATTEMPTS TO TAKE OWN LIFE

"BEGS TO DIE," JERSEY GOVERNOR SAYS TODAY

Two Attempts Made by Norfolk Shipbuilder to Take Own Life, Governor Moore Asserts; Says He Has Disgraced Family and Caused Lindberghs Much Grief

TRENTON, N. J., May 18.—John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk shipbuilder who confessed to "faking" negotiations in the Lindbergh kidnapping case, has attempted to commit suicide twice, Governor A. Harry Moore announced today.

"He attempted to commit suicide for the second time because he has been dispondent over the disgrace and the grief he has caused his family, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, and himself," said Governor Moore.

WARRANT FILED

The Governor also disclosed that a warrant had been sworn out for the arrest of Curtis.

"Police swore out a warrant before a justice of the peace in Trenton last night for the arrest of Curtis," said Moore.

"Since then, Curtis has been begging to die."

The Governor said that the second attempt of Curtis to kill himself occurred at Hopewell, N. J., on the estate of Colonel Lindbergh. The Norfolk shipbuilder has been "detained" there for further questioning since he revealed that his stories about contacting the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby were pure fiction.

"Curtis is terribly despondent and feels that he has wrecked the lives of his family," Governor Moore added. "He will be put in jail for his own good health."

The police aftermath on the Lindbergh baby kidnapping murder today continued to click dramatically.

John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk shipbuilder, who confessed to faking negotiations with the kidnapers, was being questioned. What additional information authorities might be seeking from Curtis was not divulged.

Following information that Curtis, due to financial difficulties had once attempted suicide, he was placed under close guard. It was expected he would be formally arraigned later today and high bail requested on a charge under an old law dealing with furnishing false information.

Meanwhile authorities concentrated on the "lead" furnished by Dr. John F. Condon (Jafsie) who paid $50,000 ransom to a band which convinced him they were the kidnapers. He made an unscheduled trip to Mount Vernon, N. J., to inspect pictures in the rogues' gallery. An important development in the "Jafsie" angle of the case was predicted soon.

Another "tall story" regarding the case fell away when Frank Parzycki, New York prisoner, held on a charge of deserting his family, admitted he had concocted the tale that he had taken part in the kidnapping. He said he had told the story "to gain sympathy."

Down in Norfolk, Va., the main scene of the fraudulent activities of Curtis, authorities were checking his movements since the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped on March 1.

PREACHER DUPED
Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock duped by Curtis into taking part in the "negotiations" was expected to leave for Hopewell, N. J., within a day or so to furnish police with any information he could.

Dr. Condon also was expected to visit Hopewell headquarters within a day or so.

In Mexico City, Harry Fleischer, Detroit gangster was hiding somewhere in the capital. Police were confident they could soon arrest the man most sought for questioning in connection with the kidnapping.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Dr. John F. Condon (Jafsie), who was the central figure in the payment of a $50,000 ransom to the purported kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, today was suddenly whisked away from his home in the Bronx by four detectives, two from New Jersey and two from New York.

Previous to the visit of the detectives to his home, "Jafsie" had announced he planned to rest all day.

An "important announcement" concerning the mysterious trip was to be made later today, it was reported.

By James L. Kilgallen
NEW YORK, May 18.—Disrupted momentarily by the shattering blow of the confession by John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk, Va., boat builder, that his weird story of negotiations with the Lindbergh baby kidnapers was a cruel, heartless, hoax, law enforcement agencies rallied today to continue their tenacious hunt for the abductors.

While in New York the startling assertion of a prisoner, addicted to drugs according to police, that he had a part in the kidnapping of the infant boy, not in its murder, was investigated by somewhat skeptical police officials, a secret conference in Trenton, N. J., gave promise of new developments.

CONFESS ALL NIGHT
At the meeting, which broke up early today, were New Jersey Attorney General William A. Stevens, Joseph Lanigan and Theodore Backus, his assistants. Prosecutor Erwin E. Marshall, of Mercer-co. and Prosecutor Anthony M. Mauck, Hunterdon-co., and Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey state police.

What these major officials in the case were doing today was not disclosed.

'Hoaxer' Is Near Insanity

Authorities May Not File Charges; Expense of His 'Dreams' is Great

TRENTON, N. J., May 18.—John Hughes Curtis, the man who saw himself as the savior of the Lindbergh baby and the hero of the country, sat trembling in his improvised cell in the garage of the Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh home this morning, while federal authorities consulted as to what charges may be made against him.

The man who fooled not only Col. Lindbergh, but police and naval authorities as well, was near collapse as the full enormity of his offense, not only against the law but against common decency, was borne home to him.

The Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, who with Admiral Guy H. Burgess of Norfolk, Va., was affiliated with Curtis in the Norfolk "negotiations" with the kidnapers was expected to arrive in Hopewell today to confront his former colleague and to tell his story to Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police.

LED TO CONFESS

Schwarzkopf and Inspector Harry A. Walsh who cleverly led Curtis into making a full confession of his duplicity said they were convinced that both Dean Dobson-Peacock and Admiral Burgess were mere dupes, who followed the fabrications of the shipbuilder's distorted imagination in the belief that they were helping to restore the Lindbergh baby to his parents.

Just what disposition will be made of Curtis is not known. Federal authorities possibly may charge him with using the mail to defraud or with tampering justice. It was thought at first that Curtis had conceived his wild tale in effort to lift himself from bankruptcy into which the failure of the gas engine and boat corporation of which he was president had forced him.

It has developed however, that Curtis received no money at all from Col. Lindbergh for his efforts and that he apparently never figured on obtaining any. The general feeling among the police is that financial worry temporarily unbalanced Curtis to such an extent that a vagrant thought that he might gain honor and glory as the man who restored the Lindbergh baby.

A stag party will be held at the Pickaway Country Club Wednesday evening.

Aids Search for Baby Killers

After several hours of futile scrutiny of hundreds of rogues' gallery pictures in an effort to identify the man to whom he paid the Lindbergh ransom money, Dr. John F. Condon ("Jafsie") is shown as he left Police Headquarters at New York with detectives assigned to protect him from possible gang vengeance. Dr. Condon received a personal letter of thanks from Colonel Lindbergh for his efforts in trying to secure the return of the baby.

Caldwell Bank Is Robbed Today

CALDWELL, May 18.—A $25,000 robbery was perpetrated at the Caldwell National Bank here today by three young bandits, all armed with revolvers, who bound four bank employees and seven customers with rope and escaped toward Marietta.

The robbers made away with all the bank's working funds and looted the vault, besides. In their flight they abandoned one car and stole a farmer's machine parked near the outskirts of the city.

TOUCH ALARM
Caldwell citizens loosened the ropes that held the eleven persons captive after hearing the burglar alarm. One of the persons managed to touch the alarm with his foot.

President E. R. Hazard, Cashier A. C. Okey, Assistant Cashier Julius Truxex and Bookkeeper Grace McKee were at work in the bank when the robbers entered.

After taking all the bank's money, the robbers took the personal cash of J. E. Smith, Mrs. Otto Lorenz, Warner Miller, Mrs. Madge Ferguson, J. F. McNutt, Andrew Keyser and Oakley Gore, the customers.

The bank was immediately closed pending the arrival here of finger print experts. County authorities notified officials of every nearby county who immediately tried to close in on the robbers who fled toward Marietta over U. S. Route 21.

Although the robbers constantly threatened to use their pistols to enforce their orders, no shots were fired during the holdup.

J. E. Smith, one of the customers, formerly was president of the bank. He was in the bank on a business call when the robbers swaggered in.

The bandits were young men and well dressed it was related by witnesses. The bank was insured against robbery officials stated.

Building Program Is Urged

Congressional Mass Meeting to Consider Huge Bond Issue is Planned

WASHINGTON, May 18.—A Congressional mass meeting to consider a huge federal bond issue for public works was being planned today by leaders of bi-partisan forces in the House who are fighting for unemployment relief legislation.

The unique proposal is designed to disclose sentiment existing in the House for development of a program to provide jobs through a "prosperity loan."

The mass meeting will be addressed by economists who have studied the effect of a $5,000,000,000 bond issue for public works as a means of providing jobs and opening factories to supply materials.

MOBILIZE HOUSE
Plans to mobilize House sentiment are being formulated by Rep. Mead (D) of New York, Rep. Kelly (R) of Pennsylvania and Rep. Laguardia (R) of New York.

The latter as chairman of the "Progressive bloc."

"We expect to have a general meeting at which the whole situation will be discussed, and are trying to formulate a tentative program," said Rep. Kelly.

"The sentiment seems to be strongly for a public works program that will actually put men to work, to be financed by a bond issue of five billion dollars more or less—whatever amount is necessary."

Rep. Horr (R) of Washington, who has just returned from the Northwest, said he would urge a five billion dollar bond issue.

NEEDS GREAT
"The need is great and the program is receiving strong backing," said Horr. "I am being flooded with telegrams and resolutions from civic organizations and individuals urging support for a huge bond issue."

"HOODLUMS" ARE SOUGHT

Window Panes in Several Houses Broken by Stone-Thrower; One Is Held.

Police are searching for the "hoodlums" who have shattered several windows in local residences in the past few days following reports that two additional windows were smashed between 9:30 and 9:45 p. m. Tuesday.

Guy Rader, N. Pickaway-st., reported to police that a plate glass window was broken at his residence by a stone thrown by some unknown person.

Crust, N. Court-st., told officers that several stones were tossed at his house resulting in one glass being broken.

Merle Crosby, 23, has pleaded guilty before Mayor E. T. Hedger to a charge of throwing a stone through a window in Weldon alley last week but has denied any connection with the other damage.

He was arrested Wednesday by Officer William McCrady and Mayor Hedger. He has not yet been sentenced.

Crosby served time in the workhouse at one time for breaking windows.

ROSS-CO CORONER CONTINUES PROBE IN KINGSTON CASE

OVA HILL, 33, PASSES AWAY

Timekeeper For N. & W. Railroad Succumbs After Three Months' Illness.

Ova M. Hill, 33, died at his home 333 E. Franklin-st., Tuesday at midnight of complications. He had been ill three months.

Mr. Hill, a native of Kentucky, had been employed as a timekeeper by the Norfolk & Western railroad. He was a member of the 145th Motor Transport Company, Ohio National Guard.

He was born Aug. 20, 1898, a son of Frank and Martha Skaggs Hill. His father is deceased.

He was married to Edith Smith in Dayton, April 21, 1930, who survives him with one son, Ted Lewis Hill, the first child born at Berger hospital. His mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Anderson, three brothers, Wallace, Elmer and James, all of this city, and three sisters, Mrs. Jav Hatfield and Mrs. Bessie Hill of this city and Mrs. Clyde Gregg of Columbus, also survive.

Funeral services will be Thursday at the home at 2:30 p. m. Rev. E. S. Tompkins officiating with interment in Forest cemetery by M. S. Ranehart. Pallbearers will be members of the Motor Transport Company.

STORY RELATED
The "suspicious circumstances" referred to by the coroner were described by Sheriff T. Ewing Argabright, Ross-co. as being "a ladder leading to the porch roof at the rear of the building, an open window leading into the porch roof, an outside door to the kitchen unlocked, a blood stained women's garment of which was found in the room, and the other at the foot of the ladder, bureau drawers standing open throughout the house, empty billfold crumpled on the floor, two kitchen chairs overturned, and other unusual circumstances at the scene."

The body was discovered at about 7 a. m. by George Waite, brother of the deceased, who had been in the habit of leaving the key to his garage at his brother's room each night.

Tuesday morning when the boy who opened the garage went to the pool room for the night he found it locked. He reported to George Waite who investigated, found the body, and called the sheriff.

George Waite was of the opinion that it was a suicide, and that other appearances had been arranged to cast suspicion elsewhere.

Ed Waite was clad in pajamas and barefooted when found. He had been bleeding at the mouth and nose and, according to the coroner, had been dead for several hours.

The opening through which the bullet from Waite's own 22 caliber pistol had entered was small, indicating a shot at close range. The coloration from blood prevented a view of any possible powder burns. The gun had been fired just once and was found lying at Waite's feet.

Waite's couch in an adjoining room on the ground floor gave the appearance of having been slept in. On a stand nearby was an open Bible with the 12th chapter of Isaiah marked in pencil. A pencil was lying nearby.

REGS TUNED UP
In each of the two front rooms one corner of the rug had been turned back. Beneath one of these was found a tin to the floor, a statement of $675 from the Shannon undertaking establishment for the funeral expenses of his wife.

Ed. W. Waite, 63, Well Known Here, Found Dead With Bullet in Head Tues.

THEORIES DIFFER
Suicide Is Thought Probable Decision

Continuing his investigation into the strange death of Ed. W. Waite, 63, Kingston, poolroom proprietor, who was found by his brother, George, Tuesday, with a bullet wound in his head, Coroner E. C. Robbins of Ross-co. Wednesday, ordered funeral arrangements delayed.

The body was found crumpled in a corner in the kitchen of Waite's quarters in the rear of the poolroom where he made his home alone.

Whether the man's death was suicide or murder has not been definitely determined, circumstances leading residents of the village to be divided in their decision. Coroner Robbins, following his preliminary examination, declared it looks like suicide, but there are some suspicious circumstances.

CONTRAL OF MELON INSECTS STRESS E D

The melon crop throughout the Valley is coming through the ground and melon growers will be faced with a battle to protect this crop against insect and disease injury. From the time the plants they begin to vine, the most effective insect control may be obtained through thorough dusting with Calcium Arsenate one pound and Gypsum 20 pounds.

In controlling the striped cucumber beetle, a number of virus diseases which are carried by this beetle may be avoided. When the plants begin to vine, a thorough dusting with Copper Lime Dust or spraying with Bordeaux 2-4-50 give best results in checking blight, leaf spot, etc.

The Copper Lime Dust may be prepared by mixing 10 pounds of Monohydrated Copper Sulphate with 60 pounds of Hydrated Lime. Dusting and spraying programs need to be made frequently that the foliage be covered as a repellent to insects which carry a number of the injurious fungus diseases.

The Cave Man

THE cave man always did come in for a deal of attention. It is a popular notion that he was free and magnificently brutal. But it was only recently that scientists arrived at the conclusion that he was intelligent, so intelligent that he would rate a better I. Q. than many of his supposedly more civilized descendant.

The suggestion may seem repellent, for most persons are loath to admit that in intelligence they are inferior. But when facts are scrutinized it is found that a considerable number show the cave man to have been a superior being in many ways.

So far we know: He did not, for one thing, indulge in, or succumb to, what moderns have named "funk." He fought nothing from high-pressure salesmen. He conducted no moral crusades. He did not believe that clothes make the man. He pretended to no sophistication. He never got into a rut of became the slave of routine. He made war, but when he did he did not talk about abstractions. He preferred solitude to the crowd. He was never known to have made laws which he knew he could not live up to, and custom and tradition never dictated his manner of living.

The cave man accepted life on the simplest and most honest terms. Living on an earth much fiercer than it is today, he yet managed to avoid being too glib or silly. He lived, begot children and died. In the end modern man does no more. If he was not more intelligent than modern man, at least he gave his native intelligence more freedom in dealing with life.

Technicalities in Court

It is hoped the recent chastisement of super-technical lawyers will bear fruit. The rebuke was directed at counsel in a specific case, but the legal profession as a whole might well take it to heart. In fairness to the lawyers, it might be pointed out that the evil of super-technicality is not all on their side. A prominent jurist severely criticizes the tendency of courts to deal in language that is incomprehensible to the layman. The law, and takes the position that judges must use more understandable diction if justice is to be meted out.

So serious is the situation in the eyes of the nation's highest tribunal that it henceforth will penalize those who bring up cases for the purpose of delaying execution of the orders of lower courts. This drastic action was warranted, but it could have been unnecessary. Could not the remedy have come from within the legal profession? The profession should check up on its own shortcomings and make several additions to its list of unethical practices. Certainly, lawyers are fully aware of the growing tendency of submerge fundamental principles of justice under a fog of technical language and procedure.

The appellate courts have their hands full without the flood of unfounded appeals which are largely responsible for the congestion which is thwarting swift justice.

Abuse of the Frank

THE limitations, if any, surrounding the use of the congressional frank have never been sharply drawn. Recent disclosure have emphasized the use to which it may be put. It has been shown that hundreds of thousands of speeches, or what passed for them, have been sent from Washington for campaign purposes at the expense of the taxpayers.

The only statutory requirement is that the matter appears first in the Congressional Record of a government pamphlet. This is no brake for the rules governing that publication have been so loosely interpreted that it is possible to get anything, no matter how extraneous, within its columns. It is not necessary that the matter to be printed be a speech of a member. It may be, and often is, the utterance of some private individual, a letter or a magazine article.

That members of Congress wish to increase rather than limit the field of distribution under the frank is indicated by proposals made in every session of that body. The scheme to bring this about are many and ingenious.

The entire matter of congressional printing and the use of the frank needs investigation and regulation. The taxpayers should not be called upon to share the costs of furthering the personal or political ambitions of members of congress. No good reason exists why the flood of government publications should inundate those who have not requested them. And it is unethical to the extreme for a congressman to make taxpayers finance his campaign for reelection.

"THE LOVE TRAP"

SYNOPSIS

Mary Kennedy, pretty secretary, becomes engaged to Buck Landers, wealthy sports promoter, who is much older. Later, Mary meets young Steve Moore, Landers' ward. They are attracted to one another immediately. Landers asks Steve to entertain Mary while he is out of town. The bond between the young couple grows but thoughts of Landers form a barrier. Mary tells Steve she does not want to marry Landers. One evening Steve takes Mary in his arms. Then, conscience stricken, he tells her they must not see each other again. Next day, Landers' former sweetheart calls on Mary and threatens her. Mary longs for Steve but days pass with no word from him. Finally he comes to say he is going west. She persuades him to stay. They spend the evening together at Landers' hotel.

CHAPTER XVII

"STEVE, dear, are you awfully poor?"

"Horribly," he responded, cheerfully.

"I'm so glad of that," she told him, her voice magic. "If you were rich it wouldn't seem natural—for us. I think I would be afraid of your money. I'd be thinking that you'd pity me for being poor. I don't want anything like money to come between the way we feel for each other."

"That's marvellous!" His face was illumined.

It came back to Mary how false was the doctrine her mother had always dinned into her ears against loving a poor man. What a terrible creed it had been! Money divided people—it broke them up into classes. Gladly, with her heart throbbing, she was proud to be in love with a poor man. She was caught again in his arms and they snuggled into a corner of the sofa. There was no past, no future—only this blissful present.

She knew this was love. Deep, deep in her heart the truth was ringing like a bell—she knew, too, that the embraces, the kisses, would have been impossible in their fullness had it not been for that inner sense of security that remained so mysteriously calm while she was touched with this fire of the blood—this madness of adventure. She had to tell him.

"Steve, I love you—I love you—I love you!"

He bent his head, without speaking, and stopped her mouth.

"Steve—you haven't told me—"

She waited for him to whisper back the few words that would be their pledge forever against the rest of the world. She put her hands on his face.

His voice was faint, muffled with emotion.

"My darling, my lovely girl—I love you! As soon as I saw you, darling, I loved you—but, I tried to hide it."

Her breast was heaving. "I don't care about anything else, Steve. We belong to each other now—now on. I'll never want anyone else. I'm yours, Steve. Do you want me to wait years for you? I'll wait for you, I'll follow you around—"

"I'd die for you!" he told her desperately.

She put her lips to his and closed her eyes, lost in utter happiness.

There was a draft of air—the door from the corridor opened. A tall, terrible-faced form came into the room, slammed the door behind him with a bang.

Steve's arms fell from around Mary; they looked with queer, startled expression at the intruder. Where had he come from... how had he known?... The flush was still on both their faces.

Mary stared at Landers. His face was stone. The eyes were alive—they were like ice, frozen from anger. With a swift horror she realized there was murder in his heart...

Buck Landers needed no explanation of the obvious scene before his eyes. Mary was in the arms of Steve Moore—his intelligence, at one bound, understood everything. She half expected immediate violence, but Landers was the coolest—the coldest person in the room. His graven face never varied from its stone expression; his eyes narrowed; there was seething anger back of the lids! But his controlled voice was flat.

"I got back," he explained, "before I expected to. You're a fast worker, Steve—faster than I dreamed."

"I'm sorry," Steve said briefly. Landers turned his frigid gaze to Mary. "It looks like I guessed wrong about you, Mary. The house detective tipped me off that you two were up here. Well, that's just my hard luck. But I'm going to surprise you. You're not going to get away with it."

"I'm afraid there's nothing we can do about it, Mr. Landers—any of us," Mary said from a tight throat. "It came on us just like an accident. I'm in love with Steve, Mr. Landers, and—"

Landers gripped a cigar between his teeth. "It must feel pretty awful, doesn't it, to be caught double crossing a pal?" His stare was directed at Steve. "I mean after you've been trusted."

The color came swiftly to Steve's face. "I know it looks like I crossed you, Buck—but you don't understand. Whether you believe it or not—I'm on the square about this—it's the biggest thing in my life."

His voice shook with emotion under the blinding shock, with its implication that he was an ingrate and a traitor to his benefactor.

"I understand the situation perfectly," said Landers. "If I went away and left you in charge of a sum of money, and you stole it, I'd know you were a thief. Stealing a woman is worse. And the worst of it is that I was dumb enough to think you were a square kid. Yes, I'd almost have staked my life on like dirty work, but it isn't," she said. "People can't help it when they fall in love, Mr. Landers. And after all, we're both free."

Her words made no impression upon Landers; they glanced off like pebbles thrown against a rock cliff. He was staring at Steve, his face white.

"I want to talk to you alone," he said.

Steve shook his head. "We can do all the talking that is necessary here and now."

Landers shot him a glance and said bitterly:

"Okay. Maybe you're only a fool. In that case, you might be able to listen to reason. You've got to drop this girl."

"I'm sorry, Buck—but I'm not going to drop her, ever. It just has to be done. I'm afraid you'll just have to listen to reason."

"Why, you poor sap—don't you know you're cheating yourself worse than you are me?" Landers demanded brutally insulting. "You don't have to steal my girl if you want a woman. New York is full of dames. You could have had anything you wanted just by snapping your fingers. I was going to put you in right—I was building you up for a big job and lots of dough. I'd have made a man of you. I could do it yet, because I still think you've got some stuff. You're just a darn fool, but I'll tell you this, kid—you'll either lay off Mary and never see her again, or I'll toss you in the alley. Do you know what you'd been without me? A bum! I practically made a son out of you—but it won't take me one second to give you the air. Do you want another chance?"

"If it means giving up Mary—not on your life!" Steve exploded.

If Baby Has Convulsions, Guard It Against Epilepsy

Delicate Nervous System of an Infant Is Subject to Convulsive Attacks from Very Slight Causes, but These Should Be Sought and Removed.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

INSTABILITY of the nervous system is characteristic of the immature brain of the infant and young child. For this reason slight causes, that would have but little effect upon and the child goes into unconsciousness, seeming to be at the point of death. The nervous system of the child is in such a condition of excitability that one convulsion may occur after another. This is particularly true if he is not kept perfectly quiet.

An enema to clear the digestive tract, and a hot mustard bath or pack with a cold application to the head only, frequently relieves the condition. It is wise to consult a physician, as some abnormal state of the child's health may bring on repeated attacks.

When a child has frequent attacks of convulsions, epilepsy may follow. This is apt to be the case in families where some other member has been afflicted with this condition.

Epilepsy has been known to develop in children between the ages of two and three years, although more cases develop between ten and twenty years. It is an extremely serious affliction, sometimes wrecking the mentality as well as the health of the patient.

Putrefactive conditions of the intestinal tract have proved an exciting cause in a large percentage of cases. Treatment directed to the correction of this cause offers the best hope of a cure. Certain restrictions in the diet should be observed. Alcohol, tea and coffee are absolutely prohibited, also potatoes and oatmeal. The diet should consist of green vegetables, milk, eggs, fresh fruits, and no meats, except chicken.

In "grand mal," the extreme type of epilepsy, there are severe convulsions and complete loss of consciousness. Usually a sharp, hoarse cry precedes the attack. "Petit mal," a milder form of epilepsy, may be without convulsions, but loss of consciousness, often only momentary, is about the mouth; the pulse is feeble.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Do actors and newspaper men understand each other? Is it possible for them ever to do so?

For a long time it seemed that there would never be a play or a motion picture that would be accepted as an authentic reproduction of genuine newspaper life and of the manners and characteristics of newspaper men.

Now comes "The Famous Ferguson Case," however, the sensational First National picture showing at the Cliftona Theatre, which has been accepted by many journalists as being the real thing, at last.

It was written by Courtenay Terrett, one of the best known reporters in the United States, which perhaps explains why realism has, after many vain trials, been attained.

And Joan Blondell, who plays the central role of Maizie Dickson, a "sob sister," in the picture, says she doesn't see any reason why show folk and newspaper folk should live in separate worlds.

"We're all human," says Joan. "We all share the same fundamental. The rest is just trimming. I've known dozens of newspaper men, and have liked most of them very much. They have their own traditions and their own lingo, but underneath it all they are just human beings like the rest of us. And, for the benefit of my friends of the press, I'd like to rise up and say that actors and actresses are human too. If we were not, we wouldn't be able to imitate and interpret other human beings as we do. To me, Maizie Dickson in "The Famous Ferguson Case" is a very individual, and if I have succeeded in making her real to other people—well, that's my job."

AT THE GRAND

The popular comedian, Slim Summerville, left home in Albuquerque, New Mexico, when he was scarcely out of rompers to see just what the world was like.

For many years he knocked about the United States and Canada in virtually every sort of a trade, including coffin making, bricklaying, wood chopping and a long list of diverse professions in his experience.

At eighteen he rode into Los Angeles on a freight car and soon after began his well-known silent picture career at a few dollars a day in Mark Sennett comedies of other days.

"All Quiet on the Western Front" came with talking pictures and consequent world fame for Slim Summerville, and success has followed success for him since the inception of the audible films.

As the stuttering automobile mechanic of Universal's "Racing Youth" at the Grand he has been credited with one of his funniest performances.

Any member of the family of John W. Ditts, R. F. D. 1, Circleville, is invited to be a guest of The Herald to the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

The Daily Horoscope

Wednesday, May 18, 1932

Today looms up as one of violent upsets, much strife, serious accidents and crimes. The indications all point to critical and adverse conditions until after three o'clock in the afternoon.

Those who have criminal inclinations are now likely to undertake the nefarious activities. Police departments may expect a busy day. And those who aim towards the prevention of crime will need to take every precautionary measure. Old offenders and those under suspicion need to be closely watched at this time.

In order to avoid conflict and disaster under these indications it is well to keep the emotions well in hand. This applies with particular emphasis to people born during the last week of January, April, July or October. These individuals are under the most critical conditions, and need to exercise every caution.

Physicians and pharmacists should use care with prescriptions, more so if any poisonous elements are involved.

After three o'clock a more harmonious condition prevails when social relations are apt to be very favorable. Much benefit is promised those connected with music and art and those whose work brings them in touch with the stage.

Children born on this date make good entertainers. They crave social life and are much appreciated because of their pleasing personality and keen sense of humor. Being graceful and active on their feet, it is easy for them to learn dancing. As children they display much common sense and are often at the head of their classes at school, on account of their ability to absorb knowledge quickly.

Among the noted people whose birth day falls on this date are Nicholas II, Emperor of Russia, last czar, 1868; Giovanni Sgambati, pianist and composer, 1843; John W. Gates, capitalist, 1872.

FERTILIZATION OF ALFALFA RELATED

So much is said about alfalfa getting its nitrogen from the air that its mineral requirements are frequently overlooked. As a matter of fact alfalfa is one of the most exhaustive crops as far as mineral fertility is concerned. A four ton crop of alfalfa may removes twice as much phosphorus as a thirty bushel wheat crop, or somewhat more than is contained in both the grain and stover of a seventy-five bushel corn crop. In polish removal, four tons of alfalfa is equivalent to over 500 bushels of potatoes, or thirty tons of cabbage. Poor growth and vigor of alfalfa is frequently due to phosphate or potash starvation.
 For crops respond so profitably to adequate fertilization as does alfalfa.

A good time to fertilize alfalfa is right after the first cutting. The fertilizer can be broadcast, and then disced or harrowed in. The cultivation will not injure the alfalfa, but on the contrary, may be beneficial in reducing or eliminating grass. Not less than 200 pounds per acre of a fertilizer high in phosphate and potash is required. On soils that are particularly potash deficient, larger applications may be necessary.

KINGSTON CASE BEING PROBED

In the same room a lamp was overturned on a table. Upstairs, in a bedroom, a complete outfit of Waite's best clothes, including pants, vest, coat, necktie and shirt, was carefully laid out on the bed. Nothing else of an unusual nature was found upstairs except drawers which were open, but did not appear to be ransacked. Two spots of blood were found on the edge of the kitchen table, which stood not over two feet from Waite's body. One chair was overturned at the end of the table and another was under the table. A salt shaker was found on the floor. HAD DRUNK HEAVILY
Sheriff T. Ewing Arganbight said that it was understood that Waite was in bad financial condition, but that he had kept up building and loan payments until about four months ago. He said Waite had been drinking heavily yesterday.

Mrs. Albert Kellhofer, a widow, who was mentioned in a letter to his brother George, was questioned by Sheriff Arganbight Tuesday morning. She said Waite had asked her to come up last night but that she had company and did not go.

Coroner Robbins was having the pistol checked for finger prints. Police Sergeant Homer Richart and finger prints are to be taken of the dead man. The coroner is also checking the record of the woman's clothes. They bore a "Chantrel" label and were of black kid. The one found by the ladder had a spot on the palm and another on the inside of the back. That found in the kitchen had a spot on the inside of the glove.

Common pleas court records show that Waite had been arrested May 1, 1931, and fined on June 13, 1931, $100 and cost for illegal possession of liquor.

LETTER FOUND
The letter found on a counter in the pool room was addressed to the brother G. W. Waite, and was dated May 2, 1932. A notation in a different kind of penmanship on the envelope read, "Put this here a night."

The letter was as follows:
Kingston, Ohio,
May 2, 1932.

Dear George:
I have been thinking I had better write to you in case some thing might happen. We never know what will happen and no one with me to talk to I might get held up and killed. There is a certain woman has caused me a lot of trouble ever since dear Kate passed away and I won't have anything to do with her. She has said she would fix me and have some one do it. I am very afraid of her. She has woke me up lots of times at 2 and 3 and threaten me. I won't say who she is, she may get me yet.

If anything would happen you have Ben Shanon to put me away and my will is in the kitchen. You and he look after it and everything. If anything would happen I am afraid I wouldn't pay out, but hope so. You collect the $700 anyway I owe you.

Brother I hope to be here a long time but never can tell now days.
Yours,
E. W. Waite.

May 2, 1932.
Call Mrs. Kellhofer 787-B if anything would happen (it is not her if she gets me).

The note was written in a nervous hand writing and was hard to decipher. While preparing the body for funeral, H. B. Shannon, Kingston funeral director, stated that he found the chest and arms cut advancing the opinion that the man might have been in a fight. A knife was found in the room under some papers. It was reported that blood was found on its tip.

Another development came Wednesday when Ed. J. Dunkle, night watchman said that he heard a revolver shot about 2 a. m. Tuesday from the direction of the Waite poolroom but after running toward the scene saw no one.

Mr. Waite's wife was Kate Cook, a resident of this city. She succumbed July 23, 1931. Two brothers, George of Kingston, who found the man's body, and Pearl of Columbus and four sisters, Mrs. Minnie Morris of Kingston, Mrs. Ida Jack and Miss Alice Waite of Columbus and Mrs. Nettie Holzner of New York City, survive.

Any member of the family of Jerry Estell, R. F. D. 1, Circleville is invited to be a guest of The Herald to the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

BEGS TO DIE

charge of tracking down the kidnap-murderers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., discussed at the mid-night conference was not divulged.

GOVERNOR CALLED

But the importance of the conference was indicated by two telephone calls made by Stevens to Governor A. Harry Moore of New Jersey.

The first led the Governor to leave a dinner of the Ne Exalt club of John Marshall college in New York with the remark:

"The attorney general phoned me and asked me to meet him on a matter of very great importance." Stevens telephoned the governor then at some undisclosed place shortly before the meeting broke up apparently on a matter of paramount importance in the Lindbergh kidnap hunt.

Schwarzkopf, in his late bulletin declared so far no person was identified as either the stealer or slayer of the son of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Meanwhile, the center of interest here was divided between Dr. John F. Condon the "Jafsie" through whom Lindbergh paid $50,000 ransom to the supposed kidnapers and who is to testify before the Bronx-co grand jury Friday, and the amazing "confession" of the New York prisoner.

He is Frank Parzych, 30 Brooklyn, much tattooed sailor, about 29 who was arrested on a charge of abandoning his wife and children.

GIVES DETAILS

In his cell, he summoned officials and gave them a purported detailed narrative of the kidnapping and death of the Lindbergh baby.

He declared, with six other men, rum runners with whom he was associated on a vessel, he drove to the Lindbergh home near Hopewell, N. J., on the night of March 1; that two men left the automobile to carry out the child's theft.

In descending the ladder reared against the baby's nursery, he continued, the man with the infant fell, and the infant died from an injury to its head.

Discovering the infant was dead while driving away, Parzych said, they stopped and one man carried the child into a clump of bushes. This man returned alone, carrying a bundle of the infant's clothes.

The ladder, Parzych related, was made in two sections on the rum runner.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney, who personally heard the sailor tell his story, was puzzled by the tale because, while said to be a drug addict and a heavy drinker, Parzych stuck to his story and its details without variation for 24 hours while he was questioned.

The ladder actually found at the scene of the kidnapping was in three sections, although one section appeared to have been hurriedly tacked on to the other two.

Dr. Condon asserted on hearing of Curtis' confession both Lindbergh and he long suspected the latter's story was fabrication. He blamed Curtis for the abrupt termination of his own negotiations with the men he believes the genuine kidnapers.

CAUSED DISRUPTION

He said after a newspaper reported Curtis had at his disposal a $100,000 ransom fund, the men with whom he was in communication terminated dealings, believing he was "holding out" $50,000 ransom money on them.

The aged university lecturer declared he was making progress in efforts to identify the Scandinavian "John" to whom he paid the ransom money.

One cryptic statement he made was that he was shown a photograph of a relative of that mysterious person "by some one from out of town" while he was at police headquarters here recently.

In an intricate cartograph he showed interviewers, Dr. Condon charred the steps he took in the kidnap negotiations. From a drawn picture in the corner of a chart radiated ink lines captioned cryptically.

AMHERST BANK TO GET FIRST LOAN

COLUMBUS, May 18. —The Amherst Savings and Banking Co. of Amherst, Lorain county, will be the first closed banking institution to receive a loan under the provisions of the new Emergency Act passed by the General Assembly in special session here Monday. Ira J. Fulton, Superintendent of Banks of Ohio announced today.

The Emergency Act authorizes the superintendent of banks to borrow funds for the relief of depositors and to facilitate liquidation of banks.

VALIDITY OF OHIO TAX LAW UPHELD

CINCINNATI, May 18. —Hamilton-co common pleas court today had upheld the validity of Ohio's new intangible tax law.

A ruling handed down to Mrs. Fanny S. Rowe of Cincinnati by Judge Alfred Mack denied Mrs. Rowe's contention that the law is unreasonable, arbitrary and discriminatory. She protested that she was forced to pay a double tax of $97,845 on stocks for which she had already been taxed in Pennsylvania. Another suit, also protesting alleged double taxation, is still pending in courts here.

How Jap Premier Died

Above is an artist's conception of the actual assassination of Premier Tsuyoshi Inukai by a group of army officers in his home. The aged statesman is shown surrounded by the assassins while womenfolk of his family vainly try to intervene. The Premier's murder was closely followed by a series of bomb outrages throughout Tokyo. Eighteen young army officers surrendered and confessed the crime.

OHIO CITY HAPPY AS BANK REOPENS

YOUNGSTOWN, May 18.—Mill whistles shrieked and flags were unfurled today as Youngstown residents hailed the re-opening of the Dollar Savings & Trust company, which closed last Oct. 14.

Depositors formed lines a block long hours before the bank opened, awaiting admission. The bank reopened with a capital stock of $2,500,000, surplus of $1,250,000, undivided profits of $259,000 and total resources of $22,696,086. It was the largest closed bank in Ohio.

The City Trust & Savings bank, also closed, has been granted a loan by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and will re-open in two weeks.

MISSING MAN FOUND TODAY

Justice of Peace, Kidnaped Eight Months Ago Found Lying in Road Tied.

SCRANTON, Pa., May 17.—J. Drew Fague, justice of the peace at Montoursville, Lycoming-co, kidnaped from his home last Sept. 17, was found alive but bound and gagged this morning along the Morgan highway north of this city.

Fague was found by two printers, his eyes were closed with surgeon's tape. Both hands were bound to his side with tape.

When the tape was removed from his eyes he blinked under the electric lights of a police station and cried:

"Where am I? What month is it?"

The Rev. T. M. Furey, local pastor, identified Fague as his nephew, missing for eight months in the stranger's kidnaping case ever recorded here.

Fague said he had been kept in several places since he was kidnaped. He always was drugged by his captors before they moved him, he said. He was unable to offer any explanation as to why he had been kidnaped. He admitted, however, he might have had some enemies.

This Woman Lost 64 Pounds of Fat

Mrs. H. Price of Woodside, L. I. writes: "A year ago I weighed 190 lbs. I started to take Kruschen and now I weigh 126 and never felt better in my life and what's more, I look over 20 yrs. old than the mother of 2 children, one of 19 and the other 18. My friends say it's marvelous the way I've reduced."

To lose fat SAFELY and HARMLESSLY, take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—don't miss a morning—a bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—but don't take chances—be sure it's Kruschen. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

Yankees Remain On Top Of Heap

NEW YORK, May 18.—With their shutout streak snapped the New York Yankees today went about the less spectacular but more important business of increasing their lead in the American league race.

By shading Cleveland yesterday, 3 to 2, the New Yorkers increased their lead over the Washington Senators, who took an 11 to 2 beating from the St. Louis Browns for their third consecutive setback.

After the Yanks had equalled the straight shutouts, and lacked only one inning of tying the league record of holding the opposition scoreless for 41 consecutive innings, both streaks were shattered in the first inning of their game with Cleveland when Earl Averil nicked John Allen for a homer.

CHAPMAN CONNECTS

Thanks to a homer by Ben Chapman with one man on base, however, the New Yorkers chalked up their eighth straight triumph. Allen had to be good to win, for he allowed seven hits while his mates got only four off Mel Harder.

A six-run rally in the fourth inning featured the Brown's win over Washington. Pitcher Bob Burke was the victim.

Chicago's Cubs also increased then lead in the National league race by swamping the Phillies, 9 to 4, with an eight-run rally in the seventh inning. Bud Young, rookie hurler, came to the rescue from Des Moines, was credited with his first major league victory although he did not start the game.

Meanwhile the Boston Braves lost to the Cardinals again, 4 to 3, and are now 2 1/2 games behind the Cubs. The Cards scored all their runs in a third-inning rally featured by Collins' single and Martin's double. Worthington drove in all of Boston's runs with a homer and a triple. Two southpaws, Hallahan and Brandt, did the pitching.

Big George Earnshaw of the Athletics held the Detroit Tigers to favor hits and won a 2 to 9 decision over Whitlow Wyatt. Three singles and a wild throw by Gehring gave the A's both their runs in the seventh, Dykes batted in the tallies.

REDS EDGE GIANTS

Bill Walker, star southpaw of the New York Giants, lost to Cincinnati, 2 to 1, when he picked up a bunt in the tenth inning and hurled it into right field. Terry's eighth homer was New York's only score. Kolp and Frey for the winners.

Bill Harris of the Pirates subdued Brooklyn, 3 to 1. Lloyd Waner's homer off Babe Phelps with one on base in the third put the game on ice.

Milt Gaston won his first game of the season for the Chicago White Sox in beating his former mates, the Red Sox, 7 to 3.

KIRKWOOD TO FLY

Joe Kirkwood, trick shot golf artist, will show his wares at the Jackson County Club Sunday. He will play in a foursome with three other professionals, starting at 2 p. m.

After the rounds he will give an exhibition of his trick shots for which he is noted.

The Green's fees will be reduced for morning play for all who care to enjoy this sporty course and an admission of $1.50 will be made for the Kirkwood exhibition.

NOBLE HIGH IN LAUDING COURSE

Jim Noble, professional at the Miami Valley Course at Dayton who played in the Pro-Amateur match here Monday highly commented the local course. Speaking of the course after the 18 hole play, he stated "This is the finest nine hole course with the finest greens that I have ever stepped on."

Noble has played on many a course and certainly should know. He is at present Secretary-Treasurer of the Central Ohio Golf Association.

Great Rider Jockeyed by Jinx

Although he is one of America's foremost jockeys, Laverne Fator must have been born on Friday 13, under a ladder with a black cat smashing mirrors all over the place, for he is certainly no favorite with Lady Luck. On four occasions Fator has been slated to ride Derby winners, but each time something happened, and when the horse came home in front another jockey was the fortunate pilot. Chosen to ride Zev in 1923, Fator was suspended for a minor infraction of turf rules a few days before the Derby and Earl Sande got the mount, winning easily. Two years later, as Fator was boarding a train for Louisville to ride Flying Ebony in the classic, he was suddenly ordered to stay in New York and ride Mad Play in an Eastern race on Derby Day. Again Sande got the Derby mount and again he won. His third slap from Lady Luck came in 1929 when he was withdrawn from Clyde Van Dusen in the Blue Grass classic by ride Mokatem in New York. Clyde Van Dusen won with Pony McAttee up. The 1932 Derby was his latest rebuff when he was switched from Burgoon King to the very morning of the race and put up on Brother Joe. Burgoon King brought home the bacon and Fator is still to win his first Derby.

bergh baby to its home found fertile ground upon which to grow. The steady stream of questioning shot at Curtis for two days by Col. Schwarzkopf and the astute Inspector Walsh, famed in Jersey as a master of the gentle art of cross examination weakened and finally broke down the Norfolk contributor and today Curtis, according to state troopers, is a bewildered man who acts as though he were coming out of a night-mare.

ALWAYS DOUBTFUL

From the beginning police authorities have questioned the value of the information which Curtis gave to Col. Schwarzkopf. As soon as he entered the case, which was on March 10, an investigation unknown to him was made of his past life. At that time, Col. Schwarzkopf admitted cautiously that Curtis would be given every co-operation but he added "no too publication" that he had found nothing in Curtis' record that would justify the confidence which Col. Lindbergh was placing in him.

At that time, police as well as Col. Lindbergh's private agents were clutching at straws in their efforts to contact the kidnapers and Curtis was given a free hand. It would be impossible to estimate how much his activities cost the police and government agencies.

That Curtis was always at his back and call and destroyers were always in readiness to obey his commands is a reported fact.

OPPOSITION TO SOCIALISM

"The sinner will be punished through his own sin."
"Greed is the root of every evil, being sordid egotism, and has pushed the world into its present dire straits."
"From greed proceeds the unjust, unequal distribution of the wealth of nations, accumulated in a few hands with untold sufferings to the masses."
"The same egotism, exploiting legitimate patriotism, pushed it to exaggerated nationalism, embittering international relations so that every excess seems justified, and what is deported among individuals becomes permissible and even praised when accomplished in the name of exaggerated nationalism."

LOVE LAW REPLACED
"The great law of human love has been replaced by hatred while healthy principles have been trodden upon, and the solid foundations of right and loyalty, upon which the state is rested, are forsaken."

The pontiff then struck at "the enemies of every social order, such as Communists, and atheists," who he said profit by the world's sufferings to break every divine and human law in declaring war against religion and against God.

"Today atheism has reached great masses," the Pope said, "by filtering into schools, making use of films, phonographs, and radio for propaganda, by printing leaflets in all languages, and holding exhibitions and creating its own military and economic organizations."

"We know they shall not win because the divine saviors are watching, and it is comforting to see the rush of love to God."

"This choice is offered to human liberty—for God, or against God? which must decide humanity's fate?"

"Those who do not wish anarchy must act energetically to prevent the enemies of religion from achieving their aims. They must act through prayer, which will help in eliminating the unlimited greed for earthly goods which is the real cause for the present difficulties."

"If those who through excessive industrial production have fallen into unemployment and poverty would give adequate time to prayer, work and production would resume at a reasonable rate while the social struggle will be superceded by a nobler, more peaceful quest to achieve celestial and eternal goods."

"This also is the open way to peace. Therefore let everybody pray for peace, but especially those having government responsibilities. To prayer it is necessary to add repentance and voluntary self-sacrifice, even when it is the most painful."

The encyclical was dated May 3. Summaries of the message were
